Available versions Q: Can I set my Action filter to be only triggered for a particular action name? I have an action filter which handles all requests to a particular controller: public class MyFilter: ActionFilterAttribute { public override void OnActionExecuting(ActionExecutingContext filterContext) { base.OnActionExecuting(filterContext); } } Instead of duplicating the logic in this filter for all actions in all controllers, is there a way to make this filter only run for particular action names? A: Set the action method to be a method of a controller: public class MyFilter: ActionFilterAttribute { public override void OnActionExecuting(ActionExecutingContext filterContext) { if (filterContext.Controller.GetType() == typeof(MyController) && filterContext.ActionName == "MyAction") { // Do stuff here } base.OnActionExecuting(filterContext); } } 0.1. ===== Multiple sclerosis (MS) is a chronic inflammatory neurodegenerative disorder characterized by inflammatory lesions primarily in the white matter of the central nervous system (CNS). Its etiology remains unknown, but there are several factors such as autoimmune, genetic, diet, viral, and environmental exposures, and infection that have been implicated as causative. Many patients with MS are infected with Epstein-Barr virus (EBV) prior to developing MS symptoms
